Before Mars is a strategic team simulation that is carried out in multiple teams which perfectly reflects the ways in which your company works.

Disguised as a galactic rescue mission, Before Mars offers a lively team building event that provokes the critical thinking of the team members.

Together, you stand before the challenge to overcome a demanding task that requires analytical capabilities, working together, decision making, risk management and relationship management.

CREATIVE PEOPLE BUILD STRONG BUSINESSES !

Before Mars is designed for high-performing teams that want to continuously improve themselves, break silos and measure, evaluate and compare their VUCA capabilities with other departments and companies. Understanding how decisions were made as a team in this business simulation can provide particularly useful insights into what your team can do to optimise their performance in the real world.

During the event, our game leaders measure whether and how the teams learn from their experiences and how well they work as a unit.

Moodmaker is certified and has an exclusively Before Mars licence. We're part of the international development team of this business simulation, which adds new features based on customer feedback.

Before Mars is both a board game and a digital application.

This makes it easier and more fun to complete certain actions in the game, allows us to accommodate larger groups and put together an in-depth game report.
